RUM ROW CAMPAIGN IS DECLARED TO BE A WAR ON THE LEATH

KIDNAPING, SHOOTING FROM AMBUSH AND THREATS OF RUNNERS REVEALED

Admiral Billard, said today the numerous letters had conveyed information indicating that certain officers and men of the Coast Guard are as a "death list" of the rum runners and that other especially efficient gunboats are to be in constant readiness to be in the water as soon as possible.

Backwash from the Atlantic City station was kidnapped May 2 while on his way to join a patrol boat at the station. He was bound and gagged but later released on the outskirts of the city when the kidnappers found they had mistaken him for another.

The man believed to be wanted by the rum runners has been ordered by the commandant to take extraordinary precautions.

Backwash (last name of the Patrol C. 0-27) was another victim of the rum war. He was shot and kidnaped from ambush two weeks ago off Block Island.

DEATH AND AMBUSH.

Threats previously had been made against his life. Officials here believe the patrol of which he was in charge was decoyed by a rum runner on the final trip and led past another rum runner which opened a salvo of machine gun fire from ambush. Two others of the crew received serious wounds.

Several cases have been reported to headquarters in which officers or men returned to their homes to find that mysterious visitors had terrorized their families. This is said by Commander Yenlande to be partly true around New York.

The ships in Rum Row off New York have turned to the use of extraordinary precautions.

Prisoners' Life of Ease Costs Sheriff $500

Carson City, Nev., May 8.—Sheriff J. B. Crane has been fined $500 for allowing Federal prisoners and bootleggers to arrive and depart at will in his Churchill County Jail.

Testimony given in Federal District Court here showed that some prisoners, after spending the day as they chose, located their own cells at night.

Sheriff Crane also organized theatre parties and took prisoners to the movies, witnesses said.

FINO BOTTLE BEAT MYSTERY

Speciality of the girls involved in the kidnapping The Boston Evening American will withhold their names from its columns.

The men under arrest are James Horton, twenty-seven years old, of No. 24 Salem street, Medford, and Francis Lunn, twenty-one years old, of No. 373 Riverside avenue, Medford. The name of the third man who is being sought by the authorities has not been divulged.

The two prisoners were arraigned in the district court, at Lowell, on serious charges, involved in their alleged placing of the school girls in a condition of slavery.

The girls were being walking along the Revere Beach Boulevard, last Tuesday evening, when the three men drew up in an automobile, according to the story they told the Lowell police.

The men invited the girls for a ride, and after some persuasion they agreed to permit the men to drive them home. Instead of going to Byerly, however, the car was turned over to the police after darkening and the girls were taken to the police station, where they were held in the Fishmarket section of Billerica.

The girls were again held as prisoners. It was while the three captors were engaged in an argument that one of the girls escaped from the camp. She plunged blindly into the woods in the darkness, and finally came to old wagon road, which she followed until she reached the main highway.

The girls were able to give an excellent description of the men, and Officers John P. Traylor and Edward O'Connor of the Lowell force were sent to Medford, where they rounded up Horton and Lunn.

LION CUB GETS USED TO HUB CLIMATE

Mike is better. He is able to sit up and take a little nourishment. Mike, by the way, is the young lion cub that Mrs. Creighton of Boston brought back as a live souvenir of her recent hunt in the jungles of Africa. The academic atmosphere of the Hub was a little too much for Mike, and for some days after his arrival it was feared he was going to die. Careful doctoring brought him around, however, as the picture shows.

LAMAR'S SMILE FADES AS WIFE FLARES UP

When this week fades smoothly into Sunday and becomes a bit of history, young Henry Lamar, baseball and football player and United States amateur light-weight champion, will force three limp cheers out of his system.

All that has happened to Henry this week is the loss in Boston of the world championship in his class and a defeat just as great in his marital affairs.

The youthful boxer—he is only nineteen—comes from an illustrious family that is well up in taking victory modestly and grinning with defeat, but when a chap is nineteen and loses his big ring battle and then, within twenty-four hours, his young wife sues him for divorce—well, he's a Lamar.

Young Mrs. Lamar is Phyllis Moore Lamar, department store clerk in Washington, daughter of Dr. Howard and Felix Moore of the capital, and granddaughter of the late Virginia Juler, Schaeffer.

"FLY WITH ME"—SHE DID. In September of 1923, Henry, a student at the Devitt Prep School in Washington, where he plays football, baseball and basketball and is a member of the swimming team, closed to Marlboro, Md., with Phyllis, and they were married.

On Wednesday night of this week, Henry went into the ring at the Boston Arena, all set to pull down the world's amateur light-heavy championship.

But Charles Belanger, a Canadian secker and light-heavy champ of the North Country, socked too well, and Henry succumbed in defeat.

NOW ANOTHER FIGHT. Less than twenty-four hours later, the divorce action of his wife, charging neglect, misconduct and failure

GIRL REFUSES TO GIVE NAME AND IS FREED

When Salem police chased an automobile for half a mile on Central street early today and finally overtook the vehicle, the minions of the law received the shock of their lives.

Arrived late in the night of fashion, a girl, who had the beauty of Venus, Aphrodite, Helen of Troy, et al., contacted a one, stepped from the recesses of the machine.

The hardened copper were speechless. They gazed in wonder at the beautiful apparition, while the young girl, in a cool voice, demanded to know what was wanted. Finally, as the girl was about to re-enter the machine, one of the policemen one out of the throng long enough to look inside the car.

Howard was operating his car along a one-way street when Patrolman Dolan's attention was attracted to the wild manner in which the machine was being operated. He yelled to the driver to stop, but no heed was paid to his command. The half-mile chase succeeded in catching up with the fleeing machine. The operator was in a stupor the policeman said.

FLAGG KEEPS 2 COUSINS FROM FUNERAL

Wills B. Flagg, son of Mrs. Lillian B. Flagg, mystery widow, who was found dead from gas poisoning in her room in a lodging house at No. 13 Mowbray street, West Somerville, today refused to allow his mother's two cousins to attend her funeral services in Mann's undertaking rooms, No. 33 Dover street, West Somerville.

Flagg himself attended the service, accompanied by three women friends, with whom he drove to Somerville from Everett in an automobile. He was visibly affected during the service, conducted by the Rev. Francis L. Boal of St. James Episcopal Church, West Somerville. He said afterwards that he would not be present at the burial in Mt. Vernon Cemetery, West Boston, today.

The only floral tribute at the funeral parlors was a large wreath sent by Flagg. It covered half of the casket and was marked with a lavender ribbon bearing the word "Gone," which Flagg explained was his father's "pet" name for his mother.

Before the funeral Flagg had the undertaker telephone his mother's two cousins, Mrs. Lillian Wilson of Newark, N. J., and Mrs. Ruth Fowler of Cleveland, O., and inform them they would not be welcomed at the services.

The two women, who were expected to make a legal fight for a share of the $9,000 Mrs. Flagg was found to have had in the bank, were respected at West Boston for the interment.

Baty Alden
University City Smart Set to Stage Assembly Ball

THIS EVENING the centre of social gravity shifts from a strictly town environment to the old University City just across the River Charles as members of the Cambridge smart set stage their annual large and brilliant function, the Assembly Ball.

BUCKINGHAM HALL, the scene, and a gay one it will be, made gorgeous with quantities of laurel and fragrant apple blossoms clustered in their pink and white freshness. John Ames is doing the decorations, as in past years.

AND most original have they been—Mr. Ames has a divided fair for the annual in motif and color. Buckingham Hall presents a baronial vista of dark walnut and mullioned windows, with tall chimney pipes above broad fireplaces.

OF hot parties, provided ever by notable matrons, there will be a plenty. Mrs. Alexander Hill, Mrs. Sloughlin Bell, Mrs. DeCoursey Ward, Mrs. Wayland Minor, Mrs. Noble are just a scattering few in the list.

THEY are all entertaining at dinner, and take their guests on later to the ball. Still other matrons whose light shines particularly bright in our neighborhood, who are slated for business duties, are Mrs. Charles Walcott and Mrs. Charles F. Toppan.

THE receiving line will be distinguished by such matrons as Mrs. P. Stewart Newkirk, Mrs. Sloughlin Bell, Mrs. Noble, Mrs. Horace Van Eversen, Mrs. Walcott and Mrs. Robert Weston, all decorative to a degree and all sure to be handsomely gown.

AS TO THE masculine persuasion, they are commended for the very necessary other duty. Clanking Toppan leads the corps, and the

JUST WHEN the glad news will be made known, officially, is a matter of happy conjecture at the moment. Meanwhile the hosts of friends of both young people, here in Boston and the Windy City like, have ready their congratulations and good wishes.

FRENCH PRESS FLAYS U. S. FOR 'INSOLENCE'

Paris, May 8.—The sharpest criticism of the United States since the World War was printed by French newspapers today in commenting on the recent address of United States Ambassador Houghton in London. Houghton warned Europe it must stop its quarrelling or America would withhold financial and moral aid in the rebuilding of stricken nations.

"Saint Brice," in the Paris Journal, said:

"Houghton's speech was a review of the naive Pharaonism of the Wilsonian era. Why does America preach reconciliation in the Old World while she prepares for a war with the Japanese in the New World?"

The government newspaper, Le Nouvelliste, said:

"Houghton's speech was ancient history. Former Senator McCord professed a similar doctrine. After all, experience clearly shows that 'splendid isolation' is impossible."

"The United States would be more popular if they would preach less Wilson's idealism brought to America tons of gold. The Americans sleep on gold in chasing this idealism, but this idealism is only for exportation, not for internal consumption. They should not display their wisdom so insolently."

Meeting the Demands of Men for better Clothes at moderate prices

The tremendous success of our Men's Clothing Department is due to the fact that we always sense the demands of our customers. Our buyers have taken advantage of the enormous purchasing power accruing from our chain of cash and credit stores and secured price concessions, which we in turn pass on to our customers in the form of LOWER PRICES.

The Champagne of Ginger Ales

DELICIOUS! Delectable! Delightful! How vague and inadequate are such words as these in describing "Canada Dry." Far easier to paint the glory of the sunset than to find adjectives befitting this fine old ginger ale.

Many, many people have called it "The Champagne of Ginger Ales," and there is, indeed, no phrase that suits it quite so well as this.

"The Champagne of Ginger Ales." Cool and sparkling it comes to you—the golden seal inviting you to call its treasure to the glass. You take the bottle in your hand and pour—pour it slowly down the side of a thin-edge glass, as a connoisseur would pour a rare old wine of ancient France.

You lift it to your lips and taste—reflectively at first to catch the magic of its flavor and its rich bouquet.

"Delicious?" "Delectable?" "Delightful?" No—these words will not do. They tell but half the story.

"The witchery of a wonder blend is in it," you say to yourself. "The coolness of the early morning before the sun comes up." "A stimulation like that of mountain air."

Tasting "Canada Dry" for the first time or the five-hundredth time—knowing it—hearing your friends talk about it—you begin to understand why it has been famous for so many years in Canada—realize why it has created such a sensation ever since it was first introduced into this country.

Perhaps no one word describes it so completely as "different."

Different in flavor—in color—in purity—in quality—in the refreshment and invigoration that are in it. So different from the ordinary ginger ale, in fact, that it might almost be called by another name.

The reason is simply that "Canada Dry" is a real ginger ale—made from real Jamaica ginger. Furthermore, it is one ginger ale that does not contain capsicum (red pepper) in any form—a most important point to remember when ordering a beverage for your home.

Because of this, "Canada Dry" not only quenches thirst, but it is genuinely good for you. You will really be surprised to find how it lifts you up mentally and physically—how keen and fresh it makes you feel.

Try it—soon! A memorable treat awaits you at your favorite club or hotel—at home—at smart restaurants—at soda fountains everywhere.

U. S. NOT INVOLVED IN NEW PANAMA CANAL

Washington, May 8.—Two American officials who suggested that the American government build a new interoceanic canal across the Isthmus of Panama, with the financial backing of the United States government, did so without the knowledge of Washington officials.

The government has not passed judgment on the project in any way, nor has the matter been officially presented to it. No word has come from Nicaragua as to its attitude.

The two who investigated the question for the Nicaraguan government were Professor Jeremiah Jenks of New York, and Ralph N. Elliott.

SHEAN LIKELY TO FACE TRIAL NEXT MONTH

Star State Witness Against Chapman Faces 37-Year Term if Found Guilty

Hartford, May 8.—The case of Walter Shean of Springfield, names of Gerald Chapman, now under conviction of first degree murder, will probably be called before the June term of the Superior Criminal Court, according to State Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn.

The fact that Chapman's appeal from the first degree conviction will not be heard until the October term of that tribunal will have no bearing on Shean's case, according to Alcorn.

Shean was the witness for the State at the trial which resulted in Chapman's conviction of murder of a New Britain policeman.

Shean is now held on a murder charge as an accomplice of Chapman, but he will not be presented to the court on that charge as that procedure would necessitate an indictment, the State Attorney explained.

He may be arraigned for burglary and use of explosives, a crime carrying a maximum penalty of thirty years, for statutory burglary, carrying penalty of four years, or for carrying concealed weapons, punishable by three years' imprisonment, Alcorn stated.

OIL MAGNATE'S SON FINED AFTER FRACAS

New York, May 8.—Joshua Codens, nineteen-year-old son of J. S. Codens, wealthy oil man of Sandpoint, N. Y., and his seventeen-year-old companion, Thomas MacClary, paid $50 fines in Yorkville Court on disorderly conduct charges resulting from a fracas in the Hotel Baltimore, Saturday night. The youths apologized.

Young Codens and MacClary were accused after a hotel detective had interrupted a party in their room in the course of which furniture was broken and crockery smashed. The hotel did not press for severe punishment and said payment had been made.

Claims Title as Cigar-Smoking Champion

New York, May 8.—Marshall Robbins, seventy-five years old, of Bradley Beach, N. J., wrote Secretary Herbert Hoover a letter in which he claims the cigar smoking championship of the world. Secretary Hoover was informed that Robbins has been smoking cigars since he was twelve years old, that he now consumes an average of twenty-five cigars a day and that he inhales the smoke. He has never smoked a pipe or cigarette.

Pope Happy to Receive So Many U. S. Pilgrims

Rome, May 8. (AP)—Cardinal Dougherty of Philadelphia was received at the Vatican today with cordiality.

The Pope expressed interest in the coming Holy Year pilgrimage of a party from Philadelphia and said he would be glad to receive these pilgrims personally and to address them and impart his benediction.

He also expressed himself as pleased at the fact that pilgrims are coming to Rome for the Holy Year in such large numbers from all parts of the world and are showing so much religious devotion. He said he believed the meeting of so many nationalities in Rome would be an instrument for universal peace.

U. S. SHIPS SELL RUM, EX-GOV. BAXTER SAYS

Augusta, Me., May 8.—Former Governor Percival P. Baxter, who returned today from a three-month trip to South America, charged in an interview that three American vessels which he alleged were carrying rum, were being used to smuggle rum into Cuba.

He declared that the rum was sold from open bars on all three ships.

"There are difficulties in enforcing the liquor law on land," he said, "but it should be comparatively easy to enforce it at sea."

He said that the rum was sold from the open bars on the ships and that the captain or chief steward no doubt would immediately stop the sale or unlawful handling of liquor on American Shipping Board vessels.

from Portland were being entertained there. Mrs. Tuttle was with relatives who had children in the camp.

"What did you observe during your stay there, regarding the association of Mrs. Grover and Mr. Monte?" asked Attorney Mayo.

"I saw them together and seemed to think a good deal of each other," Mrs. Tuttle answered.

"Did you see them together in Mrs. Grover's veranda?"

"Every day."

"How was he dressed?" "Sometimes in a bathing suit and bathrobe, sometimes in knickerbockers."

"How was Mrs. Grover dressed?" "The same way, with knickerbockers and bathing suit and bathrobe."

"Did you see them together in Mrs. Grover's auto?" "A number of times."

"What was their position when you saw them?" "I saw him have his arms around her a number of times and once I saw him kiss her."

"Where did you observe this?" "Down the shore in front of their house by some rocks."

"What was the circumstance when you saw them?" "After some time of day."

"Did you see exactly see?" "I saw his arms around her and saw him kiss her."

"They were walking with his arms around her?"

Attorney Mayo then asked if their conduct was a matter of discussion by others at the camp. Judge Dow excluded the question. Mrs. Tuttle testified, however, that she had seen the couple kissing in the sand at the water.

"Did you ever see Dorothy Cleveland at the camp?" "I saw her there about two or three times."

"Did you hear her mother say anything to her?" Mrs. Grover said that she had never heard her mother say that Monte referred to Dorothy as a flapper.

Dorothy also denied having heard any mention of her mother having said that Monte referred to Dorothy as a flapper.

The men relieved Sullivan of $25 in bills and made him get out of the car. Report of the affair was received from the Belmont police and Patrolman Carroll went to the Heights, picked up Scannell and found the abandoned car at the corner of Algonquin street and Massachussetts avenue.

Learning that the men had just boarded an inbound car they chased it and overtook the electric car at Pleasant street, boarded it and released the men under arrest just fourteen minutes after receiving the report.

CHAPMAN MAIL THEFT LOOT RECOVERED

Bonds Believed to Have Been Stolen in Big Robbery Found on Prisoner

New York, May 8 (A.P.)—Bonds that formed part of the loot of Gerald Chapman, convicted murderer and mail bandit, were recovered today with the arrest of John J. Phelan, charged with armed robbery for failure to meet interest payment on a loan of $3,000 obtained from the First National Bank of Long Beach, Long Island, or some of the stolen collateral.

New York authorities said the bonds on some of the bonds deposited by Phelan corresponded with those on bonds stolen in the serious national league Broadway mail truck robbery, in which Chapman and two pals were charged with having received $2,400,000 worth of loot.

Other bonds were believed to have been taken in a raid on the Wilson Trust Company at Wilton, Me., in 1923. This robbery was also held at the door of Chapman and his associates.

Phelan, who is thirty-seven years old, was arrested in a cafe at Seventh avenue and 125 street, Harlem.

CAR THIEFS TRY TO KILL COP IN MAD FLIGHT

Crowd Nervy Bikes Policeman Off Road, Then Push Auto at Him on Hill; Escape

Running the gamut of police business, two men in a stolen automobile belonging to Officer Linton chased more than ten miles from Watertown to Weymouth today, tried several times to crowd him off the road and eventually made their escape.

They abandoned the car at Weymouth, however, but not before they had made one more attempt to maim or murder the pursuing officer out of the chase by letting the car roll backward down a hill up which Linton was crawling.

Officer Linton stopped his motorcycle, leaped into the fast moving car and gripped the brakes, but when he tried to get the car on foot he was hurled backward into the blackness of the night.

The automobile, stolen from William A. Linton in Main street, Watertown, near the Waltham street entrance of the two men riding in the car, Linton ordered a halt but the response was a quickening of speed. The officer took up the chase that led to Newton Corner.

Here two Newton patrolmen, hearing the roaring motors, snatched their revolvers at the fleeing car which kept on in the direction of Weymouth.

Several times Linton, who has escaped his own revolver many times, drew up beside the fugitive machine but each time the driver answered sharply in Linton's direction, in an attempt to crowd him off the road. On the bow of a steep hill in Weymouth the fugitives halted. The car, leaped out, gave it a push but it would not budge.

EDITOR URGES AMERICANS TO STAND FIRM

James T. Williams of Boston Evening American Warns Against Foreign Intrigue

Columbia, Mo., May 8 (Universal).—The need of a nationalistic spirit is the part of American journalists was emphasized by James T. Williams, Jr., editor of the Boston Evening American, who spoke here at the Journalism week program of the University of Missouri.

Mr. Williams said this country needed journalistic leaders who would work patriotically for the country's good by seeking to moderate the fury of party spirit, to "warn against the mischief of foreign intrigue," and to uphold the principles of the constitution.

"This leadership only can be given by nationalists who remember that the greatest Americans have been intense nationalists," he said. "This leadership must be raised up by American journalists, who, to their talents as journalists, join the power that distinguishes the man of character, the power of making their talent fruitful."

"To warn against the mischief of foreign intrigue and warn against this is alike the opportunity and responsibility of a great profession and in their respective regions encourage the points to maintain at all times and against all intrigues that eternal vigilance which is the price of liberty."

"Klunk" in "Klunk" by DONALD LOWRIE

Amazing Story of a Man's Struggle Against Temptations That Pulled Him Down to Die in a Cell

"Let's go over right now," she pleaded. "That will give us all day tomorrow and Friday together."

Back in prison after nearly fourteen years of freedom, Donald Lowrie wonders "Why?" and he shudders as he hears the tap, tap, tap of hammers driving nails into the plain wooden coffin of a convict whose hand he had clasped twenty minutes earlier. While still depressed with the thought—"men are worse than beasts," he is visited by Fremont Older, the man who had urged the writing of his earlier book, "My Life in Prison." Older asked him to tell why he was back in a cell. "Not for yourself," said Older. "You don't count; none of us do, as individuals; but there ought to be a moral in it, especially if you will lay bare your innermost secrets and analyze yourself truly." And so, sitting in the rays of the life-giving Arizona sun, a victim of his own weakness and slowly dying of tuberculosis, Donald Lowrie tells of the road of sin and shame which led him back to a felon's cell. His first step was in meeting a former prisoner and going on a party with him. He meets a girl, Estelle, and is strongly attracted to her. He quarrels with her, but they make up and Lowrie drinks heavily. He then meets "Edith," a San Francisco society girl, who seeks his company. Another ex-convict, Bert Holman, appeals for aid and Lowrie meets his wife, Ruth. The ex-convict goes on a lecture tour, and, returning, pays Estelle a surprise visit. After three days of drunken debauchery Lowrie goes back to writing for his newspaper. He breaks off with Edith.

By DONALD LOWRIE
CHAPTER XVI

I MADE the mistake that night of telling Ruth of my plans, waxing eloquent over life in the country and describing my rented cottage in detail.

"Oh, I'm coming over to help you get fixed up," she exclaimed; and were there any curtains on the windows? did the beds damp after being in a closed place all winter; did I know what supplies to put in? These and a dozen other questions she asked in quick succession until I began to fear that I had made a terrible blunder and would run the risk of serious illness if I did not get that place "fixed up right."

Weakly, I agreed to let Ruth come over and remain a day or so to get me "fixed up." I took the precaution, however, of explaining to her the objection my landlord had raised against unconventionalities.

"Oh, we can go over at night," she retorted. "Once I get into the place I'll be quiet as a mouse and not show my nose outside the door. If it's a quarter of a mile from where he lives, as you say, he needn't know anything. Oh, I'm just crazy to get into the country!"

RUTH TAKES THINGS INTO OWN HANDS. She danced about the room in her anticipation. Presently a call came for her to go downstairs, and I imagined I was to be left to amuse myself as best I might for an hour or so. But, to my surprise and joy, Ruth reappeared in a few minutes, bubbling over with excitement.

"I saw Jessie," she exclaimed breathlessly. "And she says I can go until Saturday! This is Wednesday. Let's go over right now. That will give us all day tomorrow and Friday!"

She was getting a street suit from her wardrobe as she spoke. The suddenness of her proposition flustered me, but that lasted only a second. Time to form, my imagination was captured by the impulsiveness, the unexpectedness, of the adventure, blotted at my watch.

"We'll search the lot 'o'clock tomorrow for day after we hurry," I announced. "That will get us into Mill Valley about 12. You won't mind walking about it. You won't be over a mile."

"Oh, I love it!" she cried. "I'm already plotting myself waking up with the birds singing outside—and everything!"

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN BOSTON, FRIDAY, MAY 8, 1925 BOOT EGGS TO BE PARADED IN STOCKS

Klansmen Shoot Way Through Big Millbury Mob

A KIDNAPER'S DREAM COMES TRUE

Des Moines Police Chief Plans to Shame Them Once a Week in Motor Truck Stocks

Des Moines, Ia., May 8.—A weekly motor truck parade of captured bootleggers confined in stocks reminiscent of Puritan days, is planned by Chief of Police James Cawender to inform the public of the bootleggers' true standing in society.

An announcement to this effect followed a parade through the streets of a wrecked automobile containing a policeman disguised as a "Duck" and holding a bottle labeled "Hootch."

Chief Cawender said today he was arranging to build a large stocks such as were used by Puritan days. He said it was his plan to place all bootleggers arrested in stocks with appropriate placards and parade them in trucks through the city as an example of what the bootlegging business produces.

Police cars will also be equipped with signs warning the public "of the evil of illicit liquor."

DOHERY LAWYER TERMS OIL PROPOSAL "ABSURD" Washington, May 8 (A.P.)—The Doherty oil proposal, which is the subject of special government counsel in the oil cases to permit Edward Doherty to fill naval oil tanks at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, but without having to pay for it, is in the opinion of the oil operator's counsel an "absurdity and injustice."

Any agreement for paying for oil for the tanks, which are subject to seizure, would prejudice pending litigation. The special counsel declared "What position would the government take in the criminal cases against former Secretary of Interior Fall if it appeared that at the same time the government was paying for the tanks constructed under the terms thus procured and alleged to be void?"

Frank J. Hogan, Doherty's counsel, proposed a year ago to fill the tanks at an estimated cost of $1,500,000 if the government would guarantee reimbursement. The offer was rejected.

AMERICANS SHARE RICH CONCESSION IN RUSSIA London, May 8 (N.B.)—The Russian government shortly will announce a concession which will include British and American capital.

The American-Japanese Berlin two months ago was the first information for each the public regarding negotiations for a concession in the Caucasus.

The American-Japanese concession was to be represented by W. W. Harriman, New York financier.

The fire was started by a dynamite explosion and many other persons narrowly escaped death. The fire was started by a gasoline explosion in a theatre. The flames, driven by a high wind, spread quickly throughout the village.

STOCKING GIRL PLAN TO MOVE SELLS PAIR OF STATUE OF COP; FINED EVERETT

When State Officer John P. McReilly learned that pretty twenty-year-old Sally Mace of New York, a saleswoman employed by a stocking firm made famous by the illustrations of Colton Phillips, was selling stockings to Watseley College girls in the Watseley Inn, he stepped into the inn and bought himself a pair for $1.50.

That is, he bought a pair of women's silk stockings, not a pair for himself.

And then he had Mrs. Mace haled into court for violating a town ordinance. It seemed that she had a right to take orders for the stock men at the inn, but had no right to sell them outright without a license or something.

Not so today Mrs. Mace, who was represented by the Boston law firm of Thorne, Hall & Stewart, was fined $25 when she appeared in Dedham District Court before Judge Clifford C. Gardner. She was fined and held in $100 bail.

It was explained in court that Mrs. Mace, who is of the college type, is a devoted mother. She is a native of New York City and she has been in the Watseley Inn for several years. She has been in the Watseley Inn for several years.

OCTAVE OF DEVOTION FOR BLESSED TERESA Arrangements are being made for an octave of devotion to be held in St. Peter and Paul's Church in honor of the canonization of Sister Teresa of the Child Jesus. The octave will be held from April 24 to 29.

Des Moines Police Chief Plans to Shame Them Once a Week in Motor Truck Stocks

DOHERY LAWYER TERMS OIL PROPOSAL "ABSURD" Washington, May 8 (A.P.)—The Doherty oil proposal, which is the subject of special government counsel in the oil cases to permit Edward Doherty to fill naval oil tanks at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, but without having to pay for it, is in the opinion of the oil operator's counsel an "absurdity and injustice."

Any agreement for paying for oil for the tanks, which are subject to seizure, would prejudice pending litigation. The special counsel declared "What position would the government take in the criminal cases against former Secretary of Interior Fall if it appeared that at the same time the government was paying for the tanks constructed under the terms thus procured and alleged to be void?"

WASHINGTON'S KIN IN FLIGHT TO YORKTOWN

Great-Grandfather and 10 Others in Air Trip Over His Route of March

Michael Field, N. Y., May 8 (AP).—Charted to follow the route covered by George Washington in his march in Yorktown, Va., where the battle of 1781, a decisive victory, was won.

The flight was then to be resumed to the navy's main base at Yorktown.

The flight is being taken to arouse interest in the proposed international memorial at Yorktown, and is expected to inaugurate what is said to be the first overseas passenger service in this country running on a regular basis.

A weekly service is planned. During the flight Colonel Clarence J. Owens will broadcast the story of Washington's 99-day march and tell of the purpose of the trip. Miss Washington will also broadcast a talk at 410 meters.

CROWD AT MUSIC WEEK CONCERT

Grand Army Head Raps Confederate Memorial Coins

Joplin, Mo., May 8.—(Assurance of half a million 50-cent pieces, to be sold by banks at a premium, to aid in financing the Stone Mountain Memorial to the Confederacy, was attacked in a speech here, by Louis Arnaboldi, Pittsburgh, Pa., commander-in-chief of the G. A. R.

He said the "soldiers of the North and South were willing to be martyred by anyone, but there was a small clique constantly acting to the detriment of the dead."

He objected to a bill in Congress to restore the old Lee mansion and to the hauling down of the flag from Arlington Cemetery.

There was a large attendance on the Common during the concert given by Gallo's Band as part of Boston's Music Week celebration. Above is shown part of the crowd which listened to the classical and popular songs and melodies rendered and three of the fair listeners. Left to right, they are: Mary McCann, Joe Morrissey and Arlene Dalbin.

TWO JAILED FOR BEATING UP POLICEMAN

Judge Connolly in Brighton Court today served warning that he would not tolerate assaults on police officers by anyone, either drunk or sober.

In accordance with this dictum, he imposed a sentence of one month and ten days on Francis Blake of No. 7 Wilton street, and one month on James J. McDermott of Mansfield street, both in Allston.

Blake was convicted of assault on Patrolman Charles C. Brown and being drunk. McDermott, charged only with being drunk, got a heavy sentence also because it was found that he took a hand in beating up the policeman.

According to the evidence, Patrolman Brown was called to quell a disturbance in a restaurant at No. 372 Cambridge street, Allston. Brown and McDermott, with a third man, were said to have refused to pay their checks, and to have hurled slurs about and overturned tables.

Blake testified that while he was talking with the proprietor, McDermott struck him in the stomach, and Blake followed up the assault by hitting the officer with a blow on the head. The policeman said that while he was recumbent on the ground, Blake struck him again. Brown knocked Blake for a trip in the language of the street, and placed him under arrest. McDermott got away, but was later arrested on the spot.

NEW BABY FARM DEATH PINNED ON WOMAN

Infantorium Head Now Faces Possible Charge of Homicide

New York, May 8 (AP).—As other death of a baby was added today to the list of infants who it is alleged, have died in the "baby farm" at 309, Union St., in East Greenwich, N. J., the head of the institution now faces a possible charge of homicide.

The baby, an unidentified ten-day-old boy, had been hurriedly removed from the infantorium after a report had been made that babies were being starved there. The baby died in Metropolitan Hospital.

The baby's death occurred while Assistant District Attorney Charles White was investigating a report that a dozen deaths from starvation occurred in Mrs. Olsen-Volk's infantorium in one month.

The woman is being held in $35,000 bail on a charge of "baby starvation." She was to be questioned today in court, the assistant district attorney said.

The woman may face a homicide charge, Assistant District Attorney White said.

Mrs. Olsen-Volk was arrested on complaint of William Angerer, who charged the woman tried to substitute another baby for his own of four months which he left in her care. Angerer claimed the fate of his son still is unexplained.

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS

STRIKING IS FLEETED IN 4 ROUNDS

By JACK CONWAY
Billy (Young) Stripling is today one of the outstanding contenders for Jack Dempsey's championship as a result of his four-round knockout of Quintin Romero, Rojas, heavyweight champion of Chile at the Commercial A. C. show at Mechanic Building.

It was Stripling's first battle as a heavyweight. This twenty year old neophyte accomplished a feat which has resulted in a big money prize for the victor. Stripling, who is a native of Chicago, was trained by Jack Sharkey, Joe Simon, Johnny Rock and other big fellows at the Commercial A. C. show at Mechanic Building.

The youthful Southerner crushed the "Wild Man of the Andes" before an avalanche of blows. He enabled to record Rojas to one of the most decisive defeat in heavyweight ever recorded in a Boston ring.

Before Johnny Romero came to the rescue of the Chilean and stopped the uneven contest in the middle of the fourth round. At the time, Stripling was punned but he was not fazed. He was not hurt and he was not tired. He was not fazed and he was not tired. He was not fazed and he was not tired.

WELCOME TO OUR CITY, PENN

ROJAS HAND PUNCHES WIN

Stripling knocked out Rojas with a right hand punch in the fourth round. The two frames the Marquis of the ring. Stripling, who is a native of Chicago, was trained by Jack Sharkey, Joe Simon, Johnny Rock and other big fellows at the Commercial A. C. show at Mechanic Building.

It was Stripling's first battle as a heavyweight. This twenty year old neophyte accomplished a feat which has resulted in a big money prize for the victor. Stripling, who is a native of Chicago, was trained by Jack Sharkey, Joe Simon, Johnny Rock and other big fellows at the Commercial A. C. show at Mechanic Building.

The youthful Southerner crushed the "Wild Man of the Andes" before an avalanche of blows. He enabled to record Rojas to one of the most decisive defeat in heavyweight ever recorded in a Boston ring.

Before Johnny Romero came to the rescue of the Chilean and stopped the uneven contest in the middle of the fourth round. At the time, Stripling was punned but he was not fazed. He was not hurt and he was not tired. He was not fazed and he was not tired. He was not fazed and he was not tired.

BIG INTEREST IN RADIO SHOW

Practically all of the exhibiting space in the Second Radio World's Fair, to be held in New York in the 35th Field Artillery Armory, September 14 to 19, is now under reservation, and even at this early date the success of the gigantic enterprise is assured. All signs indicate that it will be the greatest trade show of any sort ever held in America.

Not only will there be an overflow of exhibits by the leading manufacturers of all countries, but, strange to say, a record breaking attendance is already a certainty, in spite of the fact that the opening date is still fact that the opening date is within five months away. Tremendous interest is being manifested by radio manufacturers, dealers, inventors and enthusiasts, both here and abroad, and the patronage is sure to exceed that of the First Radio World's Fair of last September in Madison Square Garden and the 1925

A fair idea of the extraordinary local interest may be gained from the fact that eleven of the biggest industrial institutions in the metropolitan district have arranged to purchase large blocks of tickets at party rates, which they will distribute to their employees slightly under der the regular box office prices. Orders for 26,000 of these admission cards have been booked to date. This means that the entire allotment of 50,000 tickets which has been set aside for this purpose will be subscribed for long before the exposition opens on Monday night, September 1st.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX'S

Thrilling Story of Dying Prisoner Written by Himself

In the back of my mind I felt that I was acting unwisely.

A SPECTACULAR TRIP ACROSS THE BAY

Ruth, as I have already said, was very pretty, and we attracted quite a bit of attention on the boat. I felt proud. These passengers knew nothing about us for all they knew I was taking my best girl—or even my wife—home from a theatrical party. I occasionally paid attention to her.

The walk along the road through the woods at Hill Valley and then along the trail through even denser woods was new to Ruth, and exciting. She snuggled close, asked about bears and mountain lions, wanted to know if I'd fight one with my bare hands for her, and evinced just enough apprehension of the darkness to make me feel like a knight or gallant.

As we approached the landlord's house I cautioned her to stop talking and tread as softly as she could. We sneaked by like a couple of burglars, and all seemed fine and steady with our daylight, but on a short distance ahead, when one of us stepped on a twig.

Instantly a dog barked, then another and another, and before we realized what had happened we saw the forms of the animals rushing toward us. They snarled but as tigers.

Ruth clutched my arm and I half pushed her behind me. For a terrible second it seemed as if the creatures were going to stop, that they intended leaving right at us but at my "Go down!" uttered in a low and faltering voice, the leader snarled when about ten feet away and then stopped. The others did likewise, and the three stood bristling before us, barking ferociously, eliciting nearer and nearer.

I must confess that I was frightened. It was afraid of one of them might get in behind us. I had had many experiences with dogs, but I had always managed to get the best of them under a lamp, but I had never faced three before with a trembling girl clinging to me.

"Hold on to me and well back away slowly," I whispered to Ruth. Just then a light flashed in the house above us, and the door opened. Smudges, palms, and a lamp being before him, the man appeared.

"Who is he? What is it?" he demanded.

RUTH MAKES HER ESCAPE INTO WOODS

Possibly, I made no reply. I was startled that he should not see Ruth. He started down the veranda steps, coming near me.

"Is that you, Mr. Lowrie?" he asked.

"Yes, it is," I replied anxiously. "Call these dogs off. What's the matter with you?"

He whistled, still advancing toward us, and the dogs slunk back toward the house.

"Run!" I whispered to Ruth. "Follow this trail. I'll overtake you in a moment."

She immediately did as I directed.

MY ROMANTIC HUSBAND

A Sequel to "Ways of a Husband"

By Anna Lisle

BECAUSE there was nothing else to do, I left the unyielding front of the theatre and, waiting briefly up the side street, I turned into the avenue which forms one side of the block and walked toward the street where the stage door of the theatre is located.

As I went along my eye was attracted by a new drug store whose advertisement

TWO HIDDEN SECRETS OF SOAPINE

University Tests Reveal Wonderful Features of Famous Product

Soapine—the famous old soap powder—was put through a series of tests and experiments at Brown University. Chemists found the cotton things—the heavy part of the wash—grow stronger when washed in Soapine.

After completing the tests, Dr. R. Bliss said, "Cotton fabric soaked in Soapine actually increases in strength an average of 15.2 per cent. Soapine for use in the laundry clothes. They come out beautifully white. The work is done for you. Soapine does it."

Soapine also kills germs—even typhoid. For general cleaning—floors, stairs, etc.—it removes the danger as well as the dirt. Write for free sample or get a package from your grocer today. Look for the white on the package. Kendrick Co., Department B3, Portland, Me., U.S.A.

It was not until afterward that I realized how much nerve and self-possession she had. There were three hungry dogs still loose, and she was to run off alone through the woods in a strange place after midnight.

I don't know whether Smudge saw her or not. He advanced close to where I was standing and stopped.

"I can't stand having those dogs after me every time I go by," I said.

"I thought I heard someone with you," was his incoherent reply as he held the lamp still higher.

"And I thought you said you want to come over until tomorrow."

I told him I had changed my mind, and that as I might often be held in the city late at night he would have to chain up the dogs.

I mumbled something to the effect that they'd soon get used to me, and I went on.

After walking a few steps for appearance, I broke into a run, keeping a sharp lookout for Ruth as I went along. I was not a bit of a alarm, for there was not a sign of her. It was not until I got to the cottage that I found she was crouched in the doorway, panting.

"That was funny," she laughed. "I wouldn't have missed it for anything. What did you tell him?"

"I think he's smart," I said, proud. "We'd better not have a light tonight. He's likely to come running around. I don't trust him."

FACING A DILEMMA; RUTH HAS SUGGESTION

I entered the house, and I picked a lamp anyway so that Ruth could get an idea of the place. She didn't enthuse.

"It's not going to be any fun here for you," I grumbled. "I don't like this sneaking around business. He said I don't want to get in bad. I'll try to get another place tomorrow, and I don't know how I'm going to get you back near the house without their seeing you."

We cut through the woods, some way we made up, and I, without having thought at all, found myself alone.

That trip across the bay with her and the admiring glance of the passengers, along with Ruth's exhibition of nerve and coolness in the presence of the dogs, stirred me, and I decided that we were to be together that summer—I could tell by the way she talked that her mind was made up, and I, without having thought at all, found myself alone.

The Ideal Summer

THIS is Sally's and Gladys' and Paula's and Gerry's idea of an! Bit of sport of a certain kind—yes, know—the flitter of wings, and a downy butterfly— and another awaiting—tripping—her to her low-waited girl.

Whatever else there be—let there be lots of these little birds wing about, with little hours to chase them!

"What is a Summer place, far from the—not so much the lawn as the rolling crowd," say Sally and Gladys and Paula and Gerry, "if the luck, if the fence, all the garden, the meadow, the hills, the waves are bare of young manhood in blunderbus-bottom trousers, square jackets, trumpeting neckties glossy hair and ferryboat shoes!

For a few years, since the suppression of the waist-queuing corset, you have taken few violent liberties with the anatomy of women.

You have ceased to convert loose women into candidates for the operating room and the surgeon's knife. You have enhanced the beauty of women by giving their forms a chance to develop in accordance with ancient Greek standards.

You have added to their present comfort and to their length of years, placed under taboo and that the that the lesson you have been taught you have made them happy wives and happier mothers. Now, however, upon your all too-willing devotion.

Is it true? It seems incredible. At the desk they demurely and as one inquires: Oh! tell us, if you please—is the hunting any good?"—NELL BRINKLEY.

If the landscape is empty of the beginners of a very absorbing Summer story, that ends, alas! the Summer, but paints the days and hours bright colors while it unfolds. We will not cheat about those that end in tragedy. We're speaking of glaze and picnic—the picnic where, while you loaf and laugh, you hunt for purple violets and find them in the grass.

Sally and Gladys and Paula and Gerry are Summer-playing and hunting for Cupids in the grass. And the thicker they fly the more joyous a Summer for them.

ADVICE TO LOVELORN

By Beatrice Fairfax

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX: I have been going about with a young man for six months. His birthday comes very soon and I would like to know whether it would be appropriate for me to give him a gift.

It happened that my birthday was a month before I met him, so of course, he couldn't give me a birthday gift. In fact, he has never given me anything.

I love this young man dearly and he tells me and shows by his actions that he loves me. If it is all right to give him a gift, will you please make a list from which I can choose? I would like to spend about $15.

BETTY. Don't do it. Betty—don't give him a gift of any financial value. A book, a box of his favorite cigars, a large box of the cigarettes he likes best of all or a birthday card would be appropriate. Even to accept an expensive gift from a man to whom one is not engaged is unwise. And to give him such a gift is simply out of the question.

Let him take the initiative. Let him show you attention. Don't "ask after him" by making expensive presents or you may lose his friendship.

"It is his to know the intentions of that fellow who calls to see you so often," a father remarked once to his daughter.

"His intentions don't matter, dad. I know what mine are."

This new Insulated Glenwood bakes as evenly as those old Dutch ovens

IT MAKES no difference where you place your food—at the top, side, middle or bottom of the oven. The new Insulated Glenwood is as evenly heated as the old fashioned Dutch oven. At the same time this insulation will keep your kitchen cool by preventing the waste radiation of heat through the walls of the oven. And the Glenwood Robertson controls the heat to exactly the right degree for whatever you are cooking. (On special display this week at all Glenwood dealers.)

SECRETS OF HEALTH

By Charles A. L. Reed, M.D.
Former President of the American Medical Association.

THIS is a friendly letter written to the leaders of women's fashions.

By leaders of fashion I do not mean those women who are the first to appear in a new type of gown at the Grand Prix, or at Ascot, or at LaSalle, or at any other public place.

I mean those highly imaginative, but actually artistic and entirely commercial, people who get up the innovations.

They, of course, are out for the money, and we must hand it to them that they are on to their job.

Well, it is to these starters of things that I wish to address the following few lines:

You, under the style and title of Fashion, have displayed unusual intelligence during the last few years. You have been on the side of the beauty of women, which is your business, and you have been on the side of the health of women, which is not unwise with you.

They, of course, are out for the money, and we must hand it to them that they are on to their job.

THEY have a new thingamajig in the Ladies' Rest Room. A sort of nickel-in-the-slot arrangement whereby you drop in a coin and receive a dash of highly enthusiastic perfume upon your person.

Thus fortified, you're supposed to go out and howl the old world over with your devastating charm.

This machine makes me grin. It's so typical of our modern methods. Particularly our methods of acquiring personality.

Prior to the advent of the Twentieth Century, personalities were a dubious asset amongst the gentler sex. We weren't exactly sure that it was quite nice for a lady to have a personality. Somehow personalities were associated with thoughts of bleached hair and unperfumed in comes.

Of course if your personality had been properly house-broken and passed on by the better people, and reformed to all the fashionable modes and manners, you were permitted to make a display of it with discretion. Ability to make a display of it and a good deal of it was all that was expected of a respectable lady citizen.

Things happened along, however. The modern woman gave up her educational universities. The teacher took the place of the crocheter. The one-piece bathing suit put a permanent crimp in pantaloons. And the bald box and a large blind war finished up the job. The ladies clamored to be free to be different. Every line yearned for a personality. And forthwith the Ladies' Rest Room burst forth over the world.

There's Hejls, for instance. Hejls used to be plain little-little for about a month or so. But then she was twenty years ago when she married John, aged before his time. In those days Hejls made the best of her situation. She was a member of the Ladies' Aid Society, and her quilting was the pride of Wagonville. Her best dress was a black taffeta with a shirred lace front, and the widest thing she'd ever done was to read "The Eve of the War."

MEDBURY SAYS

By John P. Medbury

THIS State of Delaware has received the old-time whipping post and wren can now have their husbands spanked free of charge.

A WOMAN no longer has to kill her husband. The city will do it for her.

YOU supply the man, they'll supply the whip.

SOME towns don't call them whipping posts. They refer to them as municipal spanking bureaus.

THEY were originally intended for wife-beaters and the law was so strict that if a man wanted to do his wife he'd take her to Pennsylvania or West Virginia and do it.

THEY were for her eyes good well being her back in Delaware.

ONE woman thought she wasn't holding her husband's affection because he never struck her.

SHE said for divorce on the grounds of neglect.

A WILMINGTON wife took her husband down to the whipping post.

WHIPPING posts are relics of barbarism and the authorities ought to devise some modern way of punishing husbands, such as pulling his hair out or kicking in the shin.

OF course a husband very seldom strikes his wife any more. He has other ways of torturing her, such as playing golf all day and sitting up with the radio all night.

HER SECRET OF YOUTH

By Lucy Lowell

IT was a wonderful party. First her children came and sat down rather heavily and began to talk of their times. Then her grandchildren strolled in with more chatter, and many boxes of candy and some brightly colored silk stockings and a gay scarf, and things lived up a bit.

When her great-grandchildren arrived, the party jumped into full swing. For here, she declared, was her own generation, and she was going to join right in with them and have a good time—or know the reason why.

"But think of your age, mother!" exclaimed her children. "You're a hundred and two today!"

"Maybe I am, in years," was her answer. "But true age is of the mind, not the body. So I'm just as old as great-granddaughter Lily ever there by the radio. And she's sixteen!"

And a guest asked her how she managed to keep so young.

"Being happy all my life!" she answered. "I was the happiest girl in the town where I lived. How I loved everything, and how I felt the joy of being alive!"

Then she considered the question of her husband. "So I'm just as old as great-granddaughter Lily ever there by the radio. And she's sixteen!"

And a guest asked her how she managed to keep so young.

THE STORY OF APOLLO AND HYACINTH.

By Foxy Grandpa

BOBBY and I were picking quail out on the front lawn and as Bobby bent his little back and buried his quail with his all night and main "bang" went the quail past the mark and landed in my hyacinth bed.

"Playing quail and those hyacinths remind me of a story," I said, lighting my pipe.

"You remember the god Apollo?"

"Well, Apollo came down to earth from Olympus once and made friends with the king of sheep."

"Now this king had a young son, a very beautiful boy, whom he loved very much and he grew up to be a fine man. So the king decided that it would be a wonderful thing if he could get Apollo to be the teacher for his son. And he asked Apollo if he would do this."

"Apollo thought the boy was such a fine young fellow and so beautiful that he would like to do it. So he said, 'I'll be your teacher.'"

"As it happened, the next day Apollo became the boy's teacher."

Good Music Is Spiritual and Intellectual Inspiration

It Does for Your Brain What the Plow Does for the Soil

There is no excuse today for the man that allows his children to grow up deprived of the blessing of good music, its stimulating effect upon imagination, its ennobling influence upon character, its inspiration that DEVELOPS THE MIND.

To live without music is a curse, and to live without the VERY BEST music, now that it is within the reach of all, is needless folly and indifference.

You remember how, in Revelation, the "mighty angel took up a stone like a great millstone and cast it into the sea, saying, Thus with violence shall that great city Babylon be thrown down, and shall be found no more at all."

Tragically the angel foretold destruction and doom for Babylon. And what was the first calamity that he predicted for the great and wicked city? "And the VOICE OF HARPERS, AND MUSICIANS, and of pipers, and trumpeters, shall be heard no more at all in thee."

Music is to the mind what the plow is to the soil. Music stirs up thought, it makes the brain more active, makes thought and life better, more harmonious. It drives out disagreeable thought, brings in thoughts of beauty, hope and aspiration.

This is the age, fortunately, of MUSIC UNIVERSAL for those that appreciate and welcome it.

This is the age of the TALKING MACHINE, the machine that has done for music what the printing press did for literature, giving to all the world what has hitherto been reserved for a few.

There was a time when every book had to be written out by hand, and few had access to knowledge.

There was a time when music could be produced only by the human voice, or by the hand in direct contact with some musical instrument. Now, thanks to marvellous methods of preserving the human voice, reproducing it indefinitely, and of preserving as on the printed page all the instrumental work of the greatest musicians, there is put within the reach of every family the world's best music and the most famous artists to interpret it.

The greatest musicians can be summoned to sing and play before you, as though by the power of Aladdin's lamp.

"The man that hath no music in himself,
Nor is not moved with concord of sweet sounds,
Is fit for treasons, stratagems and spoils;
The motions of his spirit are dull as night,
And his affections dark as Erebus;
Let no such man be trusted. Mark the music."

Before there was any speech or distinct thought on this earth, there was music, of birds, insects, and of savages. Before primitive human beings possessed speech they developed rhythm, melody. Talking came after, and music helped it and hastened it.

Before this earth itself existed, according to the belief of the ancients, there was "the music of the spheres," a cosmic harmony, caused by the suns and planets in their motions, and beyond the reach of our feeble ears. We may hear it in future ages, when more highly developed.

Music is the language of inspiration. Its effect upon the mind, and upon the body itself, is magical, instantaneous, and uplifting.

It increases thought and feeling, and capacity for both. There is something wrong, as Shakespeare says in the quotation above, from the "Merchant of Venice," with the man who has no music within himself.

He need not necessarily be fit for stratagems and spoils, but he is apt to be dull as a turnip.

It is not necessary to be a musician or actively musical in order to have music in the soul. Most important is APPRECIATION of music. The great Wagner was as poor a piano player as you would want to hear.

You can judge a nation's civilization by its music. The Italians, with the oldest civilization, are the most musical of nations. Fortunately for Italy, Italian children from their birth hear good GOOD MUSIC, and very little, if any, of the atrocious, so-called "music" that destroys all musical values. The difference between a savage and a civilized being is the difference between the monotonous pounding of a tom-tom and the magnificent music of a perfectly made violin or, highest of all, a well-trained voice.

Music has become democratic, just as literature has become democratic. The great artist that once sang for the Court or the King, or for a little group of the very prosperous in some opera house, now sings—AND SINGS AT HIS BEST—beside the log fire in the distant farmhouse, or in the small flat of the big city.

Just as the printing press made literature and writers prosperous, so the talking, singing and playing machine has added immeasurably to the rewards, both in money and in popularity of those that write, sing and play the world's best music.

There were ignorant men and women that mourned the old-fashioned books written by hand, declaring that the printing press could not take their place.

There are ignorant men and women that belittle the great service the talking machine has rendered by taking music into every home. Intelligent people know that the world has been made better, that new opportunities and a new civilizing process have been created by the inventions that have made music democratic and universal.

And this universal distribution of the best music has not yet shown all its good effects. When the printing press first came into existence its beneficiaries were comparatively few, because comparatively few could READ.

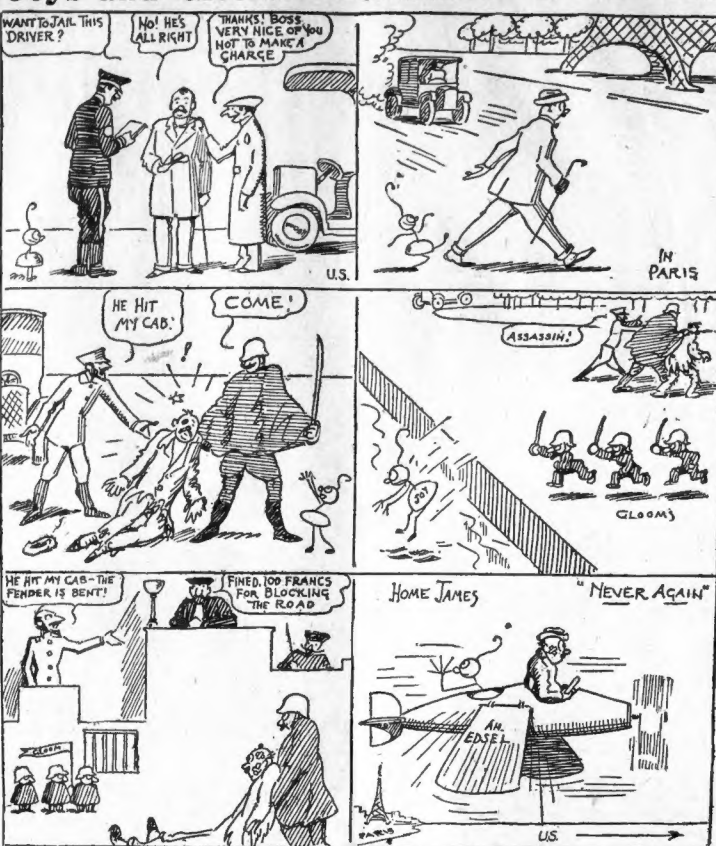

When books to read were given to the millions, the millions learned to read them. Universal education followed the printing press.

Now that the best music is given in this nation to a hundred millions, where formerly only a few thousands had access to it, the hundred millions will learn to know and appreciate it.

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

I BELIEVE in the New Age, the new generation and the new attitude toward life.

I believe in the New Woman, who goes out into the world with her eyes wide open, and no beautiful illusions to blind her, no impossible dreams to be shattered and no belief in Santa Claus.

I believe in the New Man, who refuses to place a woman on either a pedestal or a footstool, but is willing to walk side-by-side and hand-in-hand with her.

I believe in the New Marriage, which is neither a monarchy nor a servitude, but a true democracy—neither a prison nor a privilege, but a partnership.

I believe in the New Youth, which does not wait to be "served," but helps itself, as though life were a cafeteria.

I believe in "Self-Expression"—when there is any "SELF" WORTH expressing.

I believe in the New Beauty—the beauty of health, freshness, frankness.

I believe in the New World, which does not wait to be "served," but helps itself, as though life were a cafeteria.

BETTER THAT WE BE FRIENDLY IN LIFE

By DR. FRANK CRANE

A BOOK, entitled "Friends With Life," has been published by Anne C. E. Allison, one time Dean of Women in the University of Wisconsin.

The gist of the book is probably contained in the following quotation:

"The early Greeks had too keen an intelligence and too much freedom of judgment to fail to perceive all there is of darkness in man's condition, and of injustice and pain sometimes in the march of events—and yet the Greek race was, more than any other, a friend to life."

We are put into this strange existence, we have no choice as to when or how. The conditions of existence are struggle against opposing obstacles. Whatever may be the eventuation of this struggle, the end, after a while, is death.

It is essential, in the meanwhile, that we shall be friendly. This means friendly both to events, to the laws of nature, and to those around us.

This is what faith means. Faith is that large and generous attitude toward all men and all things which believes in them and gives them credit for helpfulness, which overlooks the adverse and emphasizes the favorable.

There is a relation between optimism toward events and the laws of nature on the one hand and faith in man on the other.

Both imply a friendly attitude on the part of the individual.

It is useless to speculate as to whether this attitude is justified by the facts or not. What is of value is that one gets much more out of life by being friendly, and one is helped much more by believing in people than by distrusting them, and that one is much more likely to make a successful career by taking optimism as his underlying attitude.

Mrs. Allison tells a story of a little boy who dreamed every night of a tiger. He was so terrified that his nervous system was threatened. A psychologist said to him one day: "See here, my boy, I hear that you meet a tiger every night. Now he is really a nice, friendly tiger and wants you to like him. Next time you meet him just hold out your hand and say 'Hello, old chap,' and you will see."

The child put this advice into practice, and very soon he ceased dreaming of the tiger and was restored to his normal health.

If all of us held out our hand and said, "Hello, old chap," to the monstrous and ungenial we would stand a much better show of getting along better with life. This way to make events and men and nature friendly to us is to be friendly to them.

PEERING AROUND THE MOON'S EDGE

By Garrett P. Serviss

Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

Interest.

"With great interest I follow your educative articles. I cannot over-emphasize my delight when I find subjects which I studied in my school days were explained in such a clear and concise manner.

"Now, will you satisfy my curiosity about the rotation of the moon?

Does the period of turning on its axis coincide exactly with its revolution around the earth that astronomers have not been able to perceive until it is explained in such a two periods do not coincide, which is the longest, and how long will it take before the moon shows its other side?—G. B. M.

ET us have some crystallized mathematics in the form of a picture.

But, first, the earth is not exactly the centre of the moon's orbit, for the latter is an ellipse, and the moon's distance from the earth varies between about 238,000 miles

when it is farthest, and 222,000 miles

when it is nearest.

Its mean distance is 238,540 miles.

Now, by the law of gravitation, the moon must travel faster in its orbit

when it is nearer the earth and slower when it is farther away. Keep that in mind.

There is one other preliminary fact to be kept in mind. The moon rotates on its axis once a month, i. e., once every trip around the earth, and the rate of this rotation is practically uniform. From this it follows that as the whole of the moon keeps at the same side toward the earth. Nevertheless, it does not completely conceal from us the side that is turned away, and how that happens our pic-quarter round in one quarter of the time that it takes to travel once around the earth. But since it is travelling faster in the part of its orbit nearest the earth, it will get from "A" to "B," which is more than one-quarter of the way around the earth, in the same time that it takes just one-quarter around on its axis.

Consequently when the moon appears at "B," the point "A" has not yet come into line with the observer on the earth, who, therefore, is able to see a part of the moon beyond "B," which was concealed from his eyes when the moon was at "A."

That is to say the visible hemisphere of the moon has shifted like a cap toward the right, as seen from "B." Conversely, at "C," a similar part of the moon which was before visible, has now become invisible.

Next follow the moon to "D." It is now at the far end of its orbit and its rate of revolution around the earth has been diminishing until it is now at a minimum. Meanwhile, the moon's rotation on its axis has relatively gained, so that the visible hemisphere has shifted across to the position that it had at "A."

On leaving "C" the rotation is still that part which is invisible from the earth, and has nothing to do with the illumination by the sun, for we are not comparing the sun with the moon. One thing more: the larger arrows show the moon's revolution around the earth; the smaller arrows its rotation on its own axis.

Now, here is a capital fact: The rate of revolution in the orbit changes according to distance from the earth. When the moon is near the earth it is always the same.

Start with the moon at "A," where it is nearest the earth, and once it is travelling at a maximum speed. The observer on the earth sees the point "A" in the cone of the visible hemisphere of the moon, and has nothing to do with the balance is restored again, and "A" is once more in the center of the visible hemisphere.

Thus you see, by virtue of the "libration" in longitude, we can look now a little around one edge and now a little around the other edge of the moon.

Then, too, there is a "libration" in latitude, due to the fact that the moon is part of the time north of the plane of the earth's orbit and part of the time south of it, which enables us to see now over the north pole and now over the south pole of the moon.

Now, since the moon's rotation on its axis is uniform, it will turn once around its axis in the same time that it takes to travel once around the earth. But since it is travelling faster in the part of its orbit nearest the earth, it will get from "A" to "B," which is more than one-quarter of the way around the earth, in the same time that it takes just one-quarter around on its axis.

Consequently when the moon appears at "B," the point "A" has not yet come into line with the observer on the earth, who, therefore, is able to see a part of the moon beyond "B," which was concealed from his eyes when the moon was at "A."

That is to say the visible hemisphere of the moon has shifted like a cap toward the right, as seen from "B." Conversely, at "C," a similar part of the moon which was before visible, has now become invisible.
